Campaign was taken to heart of community

The Chronicle has won an award for its Keeping Oswestry Alive campaign. ANDREW MORRIS reports

WHEN the Oswestry and Border Chronicle launched its campaign to site heart defibrillators at strategic points around the town nobody realised how successful the ground-breaking scheme would turn out to be.

Within weeks of the launch of the Keeping Oswestry Alive campaign, companies, organisations and in-dividuals throughout the town and beyond offered their support to the programme.

Backed by the British Heart Founda-tion and the West Midlands Ambulance Service, donations started rolling in to the Chronicle's offices in Oswestry to pay for the potentially life-saving heart defibrillators.

In addition to donations from com-panies and organisations, staff from the Oswestry and Border Chronicle ran half-marathons and packed bags in su-permarkets to raise the money to pay for Support came from a variety of sources ranging from youngsters at the Meadows School in Oswestry to Nick and Gillian Richards from Oswestry firm David Davies & Sons.

Incredibly, in less than 12 months enough money was raised for the purchase of five defibrillators.

Staff members at all venues have been given training in how to use the devices by community paramedic officer Terry Foster, who explained the importance of the devices in helping to save lives.

FOR YOU

Owen Paterson MP

Living in Shropshire has enor mous advantages but one of the areas of immense frustration is the hopeless lack of reliable mobile phone reception.

It is wholly unacceptable that in 2014 with all our technology, in 2014 with all our technology, no one is able to travel between the five market towns of North Shropshire without the signal cutting out.

One of the issues that bugged in Consequent was that bugged me in Government was that the me in Government was triat the data on phone signals provided to us proved to be wildly inaccurate. I was therefore pleased to learn about the Countryside Alliance's campaign which aims to highlight the areas most affected highlight the areas most affected by lack of coverage. By installing the Countryside Alliance app, your mobile phone can start mapping the areas with little reception and then feed these results back. It's a fantastic idea but more people need to get involved so that they can get more accurate results. A few months ago the Shropshire Star started their 'Get Us Connected' campaion. In no time at all the started their det us connected campaign. In no time at all the petition had gained nearly 2,000 signatures and the backing of Shropshire Council.

Lack of reception in Shropshire is not just immensely damaging to the quality of social life

This petition will be presented to Sajid Javid MP, the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport. My DEFRA job took me to every corner of rural Britain and Ibecame increasingly concerned at the impact that lack of signal was having on rural areas; I was particularly pleased by the new Secretary of State, Sajid Javid's willingness to listen to my concerns and tackle this problem once and for all.

HOW WILL MY ONLINE ACCOUNTS BE HANDLED WHEN I DIE?

Q: It occurred to me the other day that I am the only person who knows all the information about my social media and online shopping accounts. The shopping accounts in particular are a worry because as time goes on I seem to acquire more and more of them. What will happen to all these

A: Online accounts are becoming quite a problem when people die, especially in the case of paperless accounts where shops insist on doing everything digitally and no longer send out hard copy statements. Unless the deceased person has left information appertaining to their online accounts it can be a nightmare for their executors.

We recommend that when you make your Will you also make a list of all your online accounts. As with your Will, this will need to be updated as circumstances change. You should keep the list with your Will but keep passwords separately and make sure your executors know where they are. This will enable your executors to write and cancel the services. Regarding your social media accounts, check with family and friends as to whether or not they still want to be able to see your pages after you die, for example to access your photographs, and then leave clear instructions about what should happen to your online presence. This is important because it is, for example, very difficult for someone else to close down an email account in

To sum up, you should make a traditional Will to cover all your physical assets and include instructions for your executors in respect of how you want them to manage your online presence. Keep a safe record of all your accounts and store it with your Will. Instruct a solicitor to act as one of your plans for a giant wind turbine has been welcomed by people who feared it would have led to more fatal accidents on a nearby road.

Residents in the Ellesmere area feared the proposed 327ft (99.7m) turbine in Tetchill would have been a distraction for motorists travelling on the A495.

The road, which links Ellesmere and Oswestry, has witnessed several fatal accidents over the last few years. Planning officers at Shropshire Council refused the application for the turbine, which had attracted about 200 objections.

Councillor Alan Clarke, mayor of Ellesmere, said: "I am greatly relieved. One of my biggest concerns right from the beginning was that there have been two or three deaths on the main road.

"If the turbine would have been distraction and added to the risk. For that reason alone I am very pleased the plans have been quashed. There would have been no benefits to the community in Ellesmere, only

POLICE were forced to close a road near Oswestry for more than three hours after a lorry carrying more than 14 tonnes of meat overturned.

14 tonnes of meat overturned. The vehicle fell into a roadside hedge after it overturned, and fluid and debris fell on to the road.

The route had to be closed to allow a clean-up operation to take place.

The lorry fell on to its side whilst travelling along the Rednal to Hordley road near the village of West Felton.

Police officers were called to the incident and they had to shut the road while the lorry was unpacked as part of the recovery operation.

No one was injured in the incident.

No one was nurted in the incident.
Officers were called to the scene at about 3.15pm on Wednesday last week near Hawkswood Farm after the vehicle had tipped onto its side.
Ben Smith, force duty inspector at West Mercia Police said: "There were

Estate plans look set to be approved

PLANS for 50 new homes within the grounds of a historic Oswestry estate are being recommended for approval.

Brogyntyn, the ancestral home of the Harlech Family, has lain unused for decades and is on the English Heritage 'at risk' register.

Developers want to build a 50-home development within the 93 acre grounds, convert buildings at Home Farm on the parkland into 11 homes and to rectee ered fake letters.
Chris Francis, from the firm's security team, said: "It's worrying that conmen are going to new lengths to get access into people's to get access into people's homes.

THE Mid Wales house where Mark Bridger is believed to have killed five-year-old April Jones is being prepared for demolition.

Workmen have begun putting scaffolding up around Mount Pleasant in Ceinws, near Machynlleth, in preparation to knock it down. The building will be flattened, as part of attempts to remove the site's link to the murder.

Workmen have been on the site, remov workmen have been on the site, remov-ing fixtures and fittings from inside the building.Killer Bridger rented the home from a private landlord and the Welsh As-sembly bought the property from the owner for £149,000 earlier this year.

Coral Jones, April's mother, had requested that the house be demolished to help her family move on with their lives.

It is also seen as an essential step for the traumatised town of Machynlleth, which has become associated nationally with the events of October 2012. Mrs Jones said: "I hope that house will be knocked down. The house from hell will no longer stand. April's spirit can be free."

Bridger abducted April from outside

Bridger adducted April From outside her home in Bryn y Gog, Machynlleth on October 1, 2012, before driving her to his home where it is believed he dismembered her body. Bridger, who was given a whole life term after being found guilty of April's murder at Mold Crown Court last year, claimed he ran April over and forgot where hand the body in the parie. he put her body in the panic.

But detectives found traces of April's blood at Mount Pleasant and fragments of bone, consisted with that of a human skull, in his fire place

PEOPLE in Oswestry, Welshpool By James Pugh and the surrounding villages have remembered the country's war fallen through a series of services, processions and Remembrance Sunday events.

Hundreds of people attended events on Sunday to pay their respects while two minute silences were also held on Tues-day to mark the annual silence on November 11.

Oswestry held its annual parade on Sunday through the town to the memorial gates at Cae

Glas Park, where a two-minute silence was observed.

The parade then moved to st Uswall of Church for a service of remembrance.

David Cooper, Poppy Appeal organiser for the Oswestry branch of the Royal British Legion, said: "It was a good turnout, it was absolutely packed. I don't think I have ever seen the allow a packed.

the place so packed.
"It was a fine autumn day and obviously there has been a lot in the press about the 100th commemoration of the First World War this year. It was really heartening." David Preston, clerk to Oswestry Town Council, said this year had been the largest parade in many years.

He said: "The church was packed to overflowing and there were hundreds lining the route. Oswestry most certainly will remember them and as a community we came together."

He said that the morning also witnessed the rededication of Oswestry's war memorial, the pillars of the gates of Cae Glas Park.

"It was a truly moving morning," he added.
A two-minute silence was also held on Tuesday at the memorial.

locally and globally, a reputation as a school with consistently high standards and high achievements.

"One of the priorities at the new office is to try to make an Adcote education as accessible as possible for Nigerian pupils and to assist in this decision making process."

Work is already under way to increase the school's boarding facilities by 180 beds and to build a new sports hall, classrooms and dining areas.

Unusual events are noted in book about village life

By Pam Kingsley

TWO earthquakes, a killer volcano and the death of a highwayman are just some of the unexpected events featured in the history of a village near Oswestry.

The new history of Whittington tells the story not of the village's famous cas tle, but of the people who lived around it and went to church opposite.

Author Canon Lawrence Mortimer admitted that at first glance, the village didn't seem yery exciting. But after elance, the village dight's seem very exciting. But after discovering more about its Marcher history – and some of the eccentric vicars who had lived there – he quickly became engrossed in the Shrewsbury archives. "It's not an old-looking church, but look at the churchyard wall and you see where swords have been sharpened; look at the church registers, and you find the history of the world," he said. "From the 1750s Rector William Roberts used the official church record books to keep a diary. He writes about the progress of the American War of Independence, reports on the death of a highwayman, gives weather updates, and describes a blue mist settling over Europe. "That blue mist was the result of a volcanic cruption in Iceland in 1783 he knew nothing about, which was to death and that of

Market's revamp to boost business, says law expert

By Pam Kingsley

A LEGAL expert who recently joined an Oswestry law firm says the new developments at Smithfield and Mile End will be a huge boost for businesses in the area.

Gráinne Walters joined Lanyon Bowdler's commercial and corporate legal team as a partner in 2014. Having spent most of her early career working for a large firm in London, Gráinne is bringing the benefits of her experience and expertise to bear for local clients.

Drivers get

MANY people are aware that driving at.

MANY people are aware that driving at night is more difficult and stressful than driving during the day time, but Oswestry firm BBR Opticians Ltd says there are many things motorists can do to make life

The firm says if spectacle lenses are scratched or dirty then drivers may get scratched of mirty then arrivers may get more glare from headlights. They say people should not use tinted lenses at night but a "reflection free" coating is beneficial. A firm spokesman said: "Ensure that you have an eye examination every two years - or more frequently if recommended by your optician. Baby Bird Cate took over the former Thomas Cook shop in Cross Street, which had lain empty for months, and new owners have taken over the Pizza Two Four restaurant in Leg Street. Emma worked with both businesses to secure leases on the buildings and made sure that all the necessary legal documents were in pilots.

"A small change in your prescription can cause more difficulties at night.

"Glare or 'star bursting' around car head-lights can be the first sign of eye problems such as cataracts and should be checked out by an optician.

The Pincushion

The Pincushion opened in August and this new venture combines a shop that sells wool and haberdashery items with a workshop that runs courses in all types of textile crafts. Owner Emma is a "local girl (Gobowener)" who has recently moved back to Shropshire.

She has a textile degree and is also a fully qualified Art and Textiles teacher. After 10 years teaching Art and Textiles at GCSE and A 'Level she has built up an extensive skill base that she wishes to share with others. Emma left teaching that she wishes to share with others. Emma left teaching to develop her dream of running a wool shop that delivers a variety of textile workshops such as dress making, re upholstery, knitting, crochet and spinning. She also wanted to provide an opportunity for people to purchase locally sourced and British wool, the Pincushion is the first shop to stock locally grown Shropshire wool anywhere in the country, along with some beautiful luxury wools such as Rowan and Fyberspates. The shop holds regular competitions, the present competition is a 'tea cosy' competition which has been attracting a lot of attention (all entries can be admired through the shop window), and trips out to crafty destinations such as the 'Knit and Stitch Show' and 'Festival destinations such as the 'Knit and Stitch Show' and 'Festival' destinations such as the 'Knit and Stitch Show' and 'Festival' destinations such as the 'Knit and Stitch Show' and 'Festival' destinations such as the 'Knit and Stitch Show' and 'Festival

Emma is creating a community of crafters by posting all of their magnificent creations onto her webpage and Facebook page. She also has a knit and natter group on a Thursday evening 7-9 and Wednesday mornings from 10-12 so that people can help and share with one another their creations. Avian enthusiasts are also treated to an influx of migrants, most obviously in the form of fieldfares and redwings and perhaps slightly more electrifying – the waxwings.

But down by the water's edge there are other migrants and ones that you perhaps wouldn't think of putting on the 'usual suspects' list. There are two reasons why the water rail would be a less than obvious choice. It is itself less-than-obvious and indeed if a single creature was ever worthy of a single, descriptive word, then feasibly 'skulking' and 'water rail' would marry very happily together.

A secretive, enigmatic bird, the water rail is wide, yet thinly spread across the UK. Because of its nature, it is an inhabitant of thick reed margins and dense aquatic vegetation. However those traits betray it somewhat at this time of the year because not only does the vegetation disappear, but our native population is bolstered by new arrivals from Northern Europe. If there was ever a 'time' to seek out this mysterious bird, now is it.

The water rail has chestnut-brown and black upper-parts, a grey face and under-parts and black-and-white barred flanks. Superficially it may well appears similar to a moorhen, but its defining feature is a beautiful long, red bill.

It is more active at dawn and dusk and Collections of leftover food have increased and official guidance can help local authorities looking into such schemes, but there are no plans to compel councils to adopt them, the Government said in a response to a report by MPs on reducing waste.

MPs on reducing waste.

But the Parliamentary Environmental Audit Committee (EAC) said the Government had "its head in the sand", and was refusing to take steps to reduce the amount of food and resources that were wasted in the country.

It comes after Shropshire Council trialled food waste collections over 12 weeks at homes in Bayston Hill, Hanwood and Meole Brace in Shrewsbury between July and September, along with cardboard collections.

People living in north and south Shropshire can dispose of unwanted food in their green recycling bin, but no decision has yet been made for the Shrewsbury area since the trial.

Powys County Council introduced weekly food waste collections five years ago. each home has a caddy with liner and meat, fish, cheese, bread and tea bags are among the items which can be put inside.

New BMW will win friends

IT doesn't look at all sporty and power goes to the 'wrong' wheels for a BMW but the latest model from the Bavarian car maker is going to cause some large ripples in the sales pond.

For BMW expects the majority buvers of a new 2 Series Active Tourer to come from other brands. and half of them to be mature empty nesters, more likely to transport their grandchildren than their own offspring.

And these buyers won't care that the upright stance of the newcomer says 'practical' much more than sporty. Indeed, they'll relish the space this releases for both people and luggage – and still admire the BMW badge on the bonnet.

They'll bother even less that this is the first BMW to drive through its front wheels – like almost every family car made these past many decades, but an absolute no-no in BMW terms until now. Pushing power through the rear wheels is still best for absolute preci-sion from the steering and making a powerful car punch through bends, but the 2 Series Active Tourer has other priorities, and manages pretty well anyway.

This is a car aimed at the heart of a quickly growing part of the car market, ignored until now by BMW but heavily patrolled for years past by Mercedes-Benz with its B-class and the posher versions of cars like the Ford C-Max and, a very recent arrival, the VW Golf SV. All attempt a dash of style while remembering that practicality wins the day and the new BMW is a fine example of this principle.

It is barely longer than BMW's own 1 Series hatchback but a little taller than a BMW X1 SUV, resulting in a car that will fit four six-footers in comfort (five at a pinch). A back seat that folds (easily) in three sections and can be slid to favour luggage or rear passengers' legs, and an electrically powered tailgate as standard show BMW has taken everyday practicality to heart.

BMW Service

SEE THE VALUE IN BMW VALUE SERVICE.

Competitive pricing, outstanding quality and complete peace-of-mind: take a closer look at BMW Value Service. Oil services cost £179 for all BMW 1 Series and selected 3 Series models over four years old, and £209 for selected 5 Series models over four years old. As well as including parts, labour and VAT, these costs also include replacing the microfilters, a key part of your BMW's service schedule.

A BMW front or rear brake pad replacement is equally good value. The all-inclusive prices start at £169 for BMW 1 and 3 Series models, and £149 for 5 Series models. Your vehicle will be returned washed, vacuumed and with a BMW stamp in the service book. Value Service with BMW workmanship.

Granted, the Countryman might also be a genuine five-door car, but MINI's take on this apparent duplication is that the Countryman is an SUV, albeit a small one, making it an unfair comparison.

So, what we have here is a slightly longer MINI hatch – all the better to accommodate rear seat occupants - boasting more cabin and boot space, plus the added flexibility to attract families and active types seeking a more practical MINI hatch the changes in the transition from three to five doors. The extra length is modest (72mm between the wheels) and it does little to harm the look of this third-gen car's already expanded dimensions.

Inside this five-door model is the now familiar new-look MINI fascia, complete with oversize central display, tweaked mi-nor controls, the inclusion of a BMW-style i-Drive controller and chunky steering wheel. The result is a car that retains the trademark BMW era MINI look, but also boasts a more mature, grown-up feel.

Welcome

No question, this expanded MINI will be a welcome sight for anyone with a small family looking to remain faithful to the brand. The car's rear doors aren't the largest and access could be more accommodating, but once inside there's reasonable legroom even for adults.

The car's boot also receives a velcome boost, as along with the flexible boot floor and additional storage, folding the rear seats liberates a decent amount of

Despite the expanded dimensions of the five-door car, it remains loyal to the fun ethos of the three-door model. On the nove, the extra length and weight barely registers, which means you can still throw

Perfect for driving in city

By Ian Donaldson

How many visits do new car buyers make to a showroom when they're considering changing the family holdall parked on the drive?

A few years ago the answer was a round half dozen; yes, six trips through the showroom doors as the potential buyer weighed up the merits of the metal temptation sitting under the spotlights.

Now that same shopper visits a showroom ONCE, and then probably with a print out of the best price they've found on the internet. The main question to the sales staff is: "OK, then, can you match this

Which means first impressions count more than ever, with only a single chance to romance a buyer into signing on the bottom line. Better start with a good looking car, then.

The man who made the new Peugeot 108 look the way it does is a sharp-dressing Dutchman called Ivo Groen, design director for this model, and for the car it replaces, the strong selling 107.

He's honest enough to admit the two cars share rather a lot of the bits you can't see, and they're built in the same factory in the Czech Republic as the new Toyota Aygo and Citroen C1, so making them look different is vitally important.

Are old and new baby Peugeots as different as chalk and cheese? There is honesty again in Ivo's answer: "No, they're like cheese and cheese because they share the same roots. But while the 107 is the kind of cheese you would have with a baguette, the 108 is a cheese you would like to eat with a nice glass of red wine."

What a very French way of thinking, from a Dutchman, no less.

But he's right, the 108 does look a more sophisticated take on minimal motoring than the 107

Crucially, it also looks a lot more separated in style from the other two near identically engineered and priced rivals from the same factory.

And like the Toyota and Citroen, there are any number of ways you can make your own 108 look more different still.

Specification

The new range starts at £8,245 for an Access model with 1.0 litre engine, three doors and a specification that includes electric windows and remote central lock ing, but won't be bought by many attracted to a new 108. They are much more likely to head for something like an Active grade car (from £9,495) and the goodies it brings, from air conditioning to DAB digital radio and a seven inch touchscreen.

Passing through the Allure we reach the pinnacle of 108 motoring with the Feline grade, from £11,845. That brings a larger, 1.2 litre engine and temptations like alloy wheels, dual zone air conditioning and eather seats. So, a grown up spec in a little

Then we get to the bit Peugeot hopes will have you ticking the options' boxes; with the standout extra a folding fabric roof for £850 that lets a lot of light into the car, even though it's rather less the Cabrio that Peugeot calls it than a giant sunroof.

You can then go mad with add-on patches of colour inside and out. Perhaps a

'The little engine sounds enthusiastic as it pulls you along at a perfectly reasonable pace, while recording an impressive 57.6 mpg on a test run.'

dashboard striped like a supermarket bar code gone colour crazy, or a two tone finish, perhaps in purple and grey? Fancy a style upgrade after you've bought the car and your dealer will happily change a trim panel or two to suit your fancy.

That won't make the car drive differently, of course, but it's pretty good in standard form anyway. The little engine sounds enthusiastic as it pulls you along at a perfectly reasonable pace, while recording an impressive 57.6mpg on a test run over city, country and motorway tarmac.

There's not much room in the rear (and the boot is small) but this is a car designed for life in the city, where the optional and dearer 1.2 litre engine would prove of lit-tle benefit. It pulls better once out of the 30mph limit and still topped 50mpg, but for most people, most of the time, the little engine will do the job just fine. For a limited time only Budgen Motors is offering a reduced APR of only 5.9% on all new 108 and 108 TOP! models at Active level and above when purchased on Passport or Just Add Fuel. This will reduce monthly payments by up to £13 a month.

A new era for showground

With the news of local automotive company Greenhous taking on the sponsorship of the West Mid Showground in Shrewsbury, the signs are now well and truly evident as the new promotional signage has been installed.

The previous West Mid Showground logo has been incorporated into a refreshed design. The signage is bright and modern reflecting the forward thinking of Greenhous and showground operators, the charity Shropshire and West Midlands Agricultural Society.

A new website is being designed with the help of the Greenhous e-commerce team and a greater use of social media will characterise the marketing of future events. Greenhous is supporting the society with business ad-

Greenhous is supporting the society with business advice, guidance and support on a range of developments to improve both the infrastructure and management of events staged at the showground off Berwick Road in Shrewsbury.

The Greenhous West Mid Showground is the largest community venue in the county with over 50 acres of usable space. It hosts events of all types and sizes. The largest events attract thousands of supporters to the town each year, enhancing the local economy. These include the Shropshire County Show in May, Shrewsbury Folk Festival in September and a recent bonfire and firework display.

Smaller more specific events are held April to November, including a bi-weekly car boot sale, dog shows, horse and pony events, circus and funfairs, tractor pulling, car shows

The showground has the facilities for indoor and outdoor events with permanent and temporary hospitality and acres of car parking. There is even a facility for caravan and motorhome visitors to the town.

The new sponsorship deal with Greenhous will help to raise the profile of the West Mid Showground and work to return it to the position of prominence it deserves in Shropshire and the West Midlands as the place to visit for town and county community events.

Company has vehicles to suit your business needs

The supply of vans and light commercial vehicles is an important part of the Greenhous Group operation as most brands have versions in its portfolio.

Greenhous Vauxhall in Telford is providing the latest Vivaro van to customers. The Vauxhall Vivaro continues to set the standard for the medium van category, with established technology and a ground-breaking range of highly economical engines. It has impressive performance and style, with the kind of features that take the tough graft out of everyday working life, its good I ooks and versatility enhance any business.

ABC Fire & Safety Ltd is a family-owned-and-run company now based in Hampshire but also operating in Shropshire, run by the sons of its owner, David Hughes. The company launched in 1997 and now employs eight staff. It has a branch in Priorslee, Telford.

The company is ISO9001 accredited and also BAFE registered for both extinguishers and fire alarms. ABC Fire & Safety Ltd supplies a range of services from fire and health & safety risk assessments to alarms, training, CCTV, emergency lighting, electrical circuit inspection and testing and dry risers, plus security and access systems.

David says of his relationship with Greenhous Vauxhall: "We have purchased two more Vivaro vans from Greenhous Vauxhall in Telford in order to expand our service fleet. The next thing may well be to take on some Astra estates to expand the alarm side of the business. We were very satisfied with the previous two Vivaros supplied in 2008 although they are now long one. The company needed two replacement vehicles and the offer Ben Esp came up with for two red ones in stock was excellent as was his service and communication."

Ben is a sales consultant at Greenhous Vauxhall with responsibility for commercial sales. He says: "The vans were a perfect colour for David and we have arranged for them to be signwritten prior to them being delivered."

The Vivaro is just one of a range of van and light commercial vehicles that Greenhous supply from its brands. There is a size and design available to suit most business need.

Emma joins team at Arthurs

A new sales administrator has joined award-winning Vauxhall dealer Arthurs of Oswestry.

She is Emma Faulkner, 23, whose recruitment follows a successful year for new and used car sales from the Lower Brook Street dealership.

David Goldthorpe, Arthurs

Oswestry's sales manager, said: "The sales administration team is the backbone of a car sales department and an essential part of the business.

"We are fortunate to have many committed employees and our senior sales administrator Barbara Barrow has coped very well with a substantial increase in car sales.

"However, it was clear we had to find someone suitable to assist Bar-Arthurs is delighted to welcome Emma who has settled in very well as part of the Oswestry team."

Emma, who graduated from Aberystwyth University, is a farmer's daughter from West Felton. She is a member of Whittington and Oswestry Young Farmers.

Panda that's a little bit cross

By John Griffiths

How do you make a Panda Cross? Well since we're talking the cute but not furry new 'baby' from Fiat, hiding its bamboo shoots wouldn't do at all.

To make their Panda Cross, Fiat's engineers have beefed up the popular 4x4 city car with some rough, tough styling and impressive extra capability to make a beast that's as much at home in the wild as in the streets.

It's a pretty rare beast, too. I've probably killed off some of my few remaining brain cells trying to think of a car which matches it in both areas - ride and refinement on the road and off-road ability that would put some very much more expensive SUVs to shame.

There are a number of small cars with four wheel drive these days, including the standard Panda 4x4, which offer the reassurance of all-wheel drive on winter roads, and are capable of the odd foray onto the beach or field. But the Panda Cross is designed to tackle much rougher terrain when needed, and to prove the point Fiat let Britain's motoring writers loose in the woods of a country estate and a muddy, flooded quarry - both of which the car took in its stride.

It shares the same small, economical engines as the standard Panda, but its secret is light weight, increased ground clearance, a redesigned front and rear end to allow it to tackle steeper climbs or descents, and steel plates to protect vital components underneath from being damaged by stones and tree stumps.

In the engine bay, the air intakes are positioned considerably higher so you don't 'drown' the engine event in relatively deep water. All-season tyres, a range of electronic aids and a fast-acting, three-mode fourwheel drive system help provide the necessary traction on mud and wet grass.

But of the electronic aid which consider-ably adds to the Panda Cross's capabilities is hill descent control, a system first seen on Land Rovers and later BMW SUVs but not in cars of this class and price (from just under £16,000). It largely does away with the need for a second, heavy and expensive low-range gear box. Through the ABS sys-tem it uses pulses of braking to keep your progress to little more than walking pace down steep slopes without losing grip and tobogganing,' out of control to your doom.

As part of the test, the Fiat techies suggested tackling a wet, muddy 45-degree slope in neutral: anathema to someone so used to using low-range first gear to control speed in such circumstances. It was a leap of faith, but I tried it and the car didn't let us down. We crept down the slope perfectly under control as the electronics and hydraulics did all the hard work.

That one system alone makes you so much safer off-road than any of the many competitors who don't have either hill descent control or low-range gears.

At just over 1,000g, light weight means the small engines of 80bhp (diesel) or 85bhp (petrol) are capable on the uphill bits, too. The petrol version has a specially designed six-speed gear box with a 'crawler' first gear, while the diesel relies on its lower revving torquey character to the same effect.

Light weight and small engines have another benefit, too: fuel economy of 60.1 and 57.6mpg respectively, low emissions and low rates of road tax.

It was a pleasant surprise that all those creased ride height, all-season tyres and tough suspension - don't compromise the Panda Cross on the road where it will spend

Both engines are quiet at higher road speeds and the ride is as smooth and compliant as you'd expect of a modern city car, with no hint of the old off-roader 'rock and most of its time.

roll' to make your passengers car sick.

Cornering appears unaffected, too, and of course you have electronic stability control and the automatic four-wheel drive to give you extra security.

The Cross is, of course, virtually identical in size to its Panda stablemates, except when it comes to height thanks largely to the bigger, 15-inch alloys and special tyres glass and you immediately feel the higher seating position which leaves you looking down on most hatchback drivers

Like its stablemates, the Panda Cross seats four in comfort and there's 225 litres of boot space, increasing to 870 litres with the rear seats folded.

Traction control, stability control, hill descent control, three-mode terrain control and diff lock are standard on both Panda Cross models. Other standard equipment is pretty comprehensive, too, with climate control, electric windows and door mirrors, an audio system with Bluetooth split/fold rear seats, and a leather steering wheel with remote controls included.

Prices start at £15,945.

again at the MELSHPOOL Town spurned a three-goal lead as nine-man Llansantffraid Village rallied to salvage a 3-3 draw at Maesydre in an eventful Spar Mid Wales League division one clash.

Looking to maintain recent improvements, Pool made a flying start with Will Thomas, Jack Harris and Martyn Ziemann carving a three goal advantage midway through the first half.

But they lost their momentum as the villagers hit back to reduce the arrears with two goals before half time, and then grabbed a leveller in the second period, despite having the first of their two players dismissed.

The visitors finished with nine men after Glenn Evans was red-carded for violent conduct, but the point keeps them in second spot, with Pool slipping down to sixth position. Ben Oakley (2) and Tommy Lewis were the Llansantffraid marksmen

In division two, DYFFRYN BANW twice came from behind to earn a spirited 2-2 draw at Presteigne who had led through Christian Roberts and Tom Hooper.

Arwel Jones got the first equaliser when slotting in a cross from Aled Davies who himself got on the scoresheet when firing home after latching onto a through ball.

With games in hand, Knighton Town are looking good in third spot in division two after hammering Bont 7-0 while Churchstoke also consolidated their place among the leading pack with a 2-1 success at Talgarth.

■ Llansantffraid's terrific run of form that has taken them to second in the first division has seen their boss Ray Jones be named manager of the month for October.

The second division monthly managerial award went to Kerry's Joe Andrew, while the division one player was Trefor Lloyd (Rhosgoch Rangers) and the second division player was Ryan Davies (Borth Utd).

Llanrhaeadr in extra-time win against seven players

LLANRHAEADR booked their place in the third round of the Welsh Cup after securing a 2-1 extra-time victory at Brickfield Rangers who had no fewer than FOUR players sent off.

The Wrexham hosts were down to 10 men in the first half when Iwan Matthews was brought down when through on goal, but they stunned their visitors by taking a half time lead. Llanrhaeadr spurned several good chances but levelled with 15 minutes remaining when Matthews volleyed home after the ball had fallen in his path.

Top rally stars gear up for visit to the region

THE world's top drivers, along with thousands of fans, will be descending on Montgomeryshire this week as the region hosts four stages of the final round of this year's FIA World Rally Championship.

The star-studded line-up includes the world's top stars like reigning World Rally champion Sebastien Ogier and former F1 star Robert Kubica, while former England cricketer and rallying rookie Graeme Swann takes part in the national ranks.

Running from Thursday to Sunday 16 November, there is plenty to savour with the world's best drivers bringing with them a terrific atmosphere, with 72 teams competing in this week's international rally and 88 crews contesting the National event.

The concluding round of the 2014 WRC will be fought out over 23 competitive special stages totalling 191.27 miles (307.82 km) run through the picturesque area.

The dramatic high-speed action blasts off early on Friday morning to familiar Wales Rally GB territory close to Machynlleth. A long, challenging day in mid-Wales features double runs through the well-known Gartheiniog, Dyfi, Hafren Sweet Lamb and Maesnant stages, either side of a remote service in central Newtown.

The rally will then return on Saturday with runs through the Dyfnant.

Cllr Rosemarie Harris, Powys Cabinet

Member for Regeneration, said: "We are thrilled that Wales Rally GB are host-ing four stages here. The area lends itself so well to rallying as we have the forests, mountains and magnificent scenery.
